Auto Camps
Should Be
Under City
Ownership

WE are in receipt of a letter today from a resident of one of the Glendale automobile camps which the city council has ordered closed.

This letter appears today in the Editorials by the People column and is worth reading and considering.

The writer of this letter, it seems, has experienced difficulty in renting a house on account of having a family of children.

There is no doubt that this condition does exist in Glendale as it does in many other cities throughout the land.

LARGE families are not in favor with a great many landlords. They care for nothing but the almighty dollar. The future of America is nothing to them.

It is to be regretted that this is true in a great many cases but we cannot see why the writer of this letter should worry much.

He says that the family income is $200 per month and with this income he can arrange with someone to purchase a home and pay for it on the installment plan.

IN this way he can laugh at the landlords' and make a much better citizen by owning a home of his own. We will be more than glad to assist this man in finding a home to buy.

This letter states that the writer had been making a permanent home at the Auto Camp. This statement convinces us of the necessity of some regulations being placed on these camps. They should not be used as permanent homes but should be confined entirely to use as temporary camping places.

THERE is no doubt that should Glendale be without any camps made will be lost. We can see reasons for this condition to last. A few days ago we recommended that the city establish an auto camp on the seven acres owned on San Fernando road. This is practicable and would prove a happy solution to the problem. With a camp under city control we could count on it being sanitary and being run to conform with the regulations.

French War Dead in National Cemeteries

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The French government is beginning the vast undertaking of exhuming its scattered war dead and concentrating the bodies in national cemeteries after the American plan. It is a far greater task than the one the American Graves Registration mission has completed. In some sectors, such as the Argonne and around Saint Mihiel salient, a great many were brought together in military cemeteries, but elsewhere, along the whole battle front, from the Swiss frontier to the North Sea, bodies of soldiers that were killed in the trenches were buried where they fell.

Scattered German dead are also being gathered into large cemeteries by the French, under an agreement with the German government. The German cemeteries that existed at the end of the war are all being cared for by the French authorities who issue special permits to German families to visit the graves of their dead in France.

STILL SCRAPPING IN OLD IRELAND

DUBLIN, Oct. 19.—Exciting scenes occurred outside Mount Joy prison here today when crowds of women congregated in an effort to prevent the removal of hunger-striking prisoners. The troops failed to clear the streets and shots were fired, causing a stampede in which many persons were trampled and others faint.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—The Atlantic City lodge of Elks has adopted a resolution authorizing the expulsion of members of the Ku Klux Klan, it was said today. It was said to be the first action of the kind ever taken by a fraternal organization.

The resolution is the forerunner of a national campaign in this direction, according to Exalted Ruler Eugene Swinghammer, who said the principles and practices of the Klan are in direct contradiction with the principles and practices on which the Order of Elks was founded.

THE SLOGAN: "A DAY'S WAGE FOR THE WIDOWS"

Can City's Expenses Be Held Within Limits Provided By Budget?

MAYOR NAMED TO HEAD COMMITTEE ON BIG BENEFIT

Sub-Committees Appointed Insure Success of Plans

Mayor Spencer Robinson has been named general chairman and V. M. Hollister, vice chairman of the committees appointed by Community Service to work out details for the big benefit to be given for the families of victims of the mountain fire. As stated yesterday, the date of this entertainment for which the Tuesday Afternoon club has donated the use of its auditorium, has been tentatively set for Monday evening, October 23.

The general committee will be made up of representatives of the various civic, fraternal and social organizations of Glendale and its members will probably be called together by Mayor Robinson early next week.

William A. Howe, a citizen, not as a theater manager, has been asked to take the chairmanship of the program committee and associated with him will be Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. John D. Case, Mrs. Jack Gardner (Louise Dresser) and Ernest Tucker.

A ticket selling committee has also been named and composed of Chalmers Day, chairman, W. L. Twining, Mrs. A. P. Findlay, Miss Eva Daniels, and William P. Potter. In this connection, Rex Kelley, secretary of the Glendale District Y. M. C. A., has offered the services of Y. M. C. A. boys in the selling of tickets. The plan is to place tickets in the hands of representatives of all participating organizations to promote as large a sale as possible.

The publicity committee will include the representatives of the two daily papers, A. T. Cowan and Thomas D. Watson, Mr. Bernard of Community Life, Al Cawood who publishes theater programs, Eugene Brown of the staff of the Los Angeles Times, Reed Houtie of the Los Angeles Herald, also a representative of the "Explosion."

The chairman of this committee has not been named.

"Days' wages for the widow, children and dependents of fire victims."

This was the slogan adopted last night by the relief committee of the chamber of commerce, and is to be made the keynote of sermons to be delivered Sunday from local pulpits.

The committee has organized as follows: Dan Campbell, chairman of the Community Savings and Commercial bank, chairman; A. T. Cowan of 139 South Brand boulevard, secretary; Herman Nelson, manager of the Glendale Branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings bank, treasurer.

R. E. Tucker, director of Community Service, was appointed to take active charge of all benefits under the auspices of the chamber of commerce.

ATHLETIC CLUB TO GIVE BENEFIT DANCE

Members of the Glendale Athletic club are supplementing their generous contributions to the relief fund for the fire victims by giving a public dance Saturday night in the hall at 109-A North Brand, donated for the purpose by Ed Hahn, the proprietor. William Morgan, Jr., of the Harry Moore company, has been named general chairman of the dance and tickets will be on sale this evening. It is hoped that the dance will be so well patronized that it will yield a worthwhile contribution. Tickets will be on sale at the door Saturday night.

STUDENTS ATTEND ORCHESTRA CONCERT

The first concert of the Los Angeles Symphony orchestra this afternoon in the Philharmonic auditorium, Los Angeles, is being attended by a large number of local music lovers. A group of students are being chaperoned by Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, head of the music department of Glendale Union High school. The program includes a symphony by Beethoven and groups of orchestral selections by Richard Strauss and Debussy. It will be repeated tomorrow night.

THE WEATHER

[By Associated Press]
Southern California: Fair tonight and Saturday; gentle northwesterly winds.

CHALMER DAY IS HOME FROM BIG LEGION MEETING

Chalmers Day, commander of Glendale Post No. 127, arrived home at noon today from San Francisco, where he had been attending the American Legion convention. He states that between 75,000 and 100,000 people were in attendance, including the visitors. They were royally entertained all through the convention. Mr. Day and Dru Nicoles were very much shocked and saddened when they read in Monday's San Francisco papers of the tragic death of Clarence Edwards and debated seriously whether or not they should come home at once. But finally they concluded to remain, as their community home would be of no service. Utmost harmony prevailed at all times at the convention, except when the resolutions aimed at Ku-Klux Klan were being debated, and then no really bitter feelings were engendered, he states. "All this talk about the threatened disruption of the Legion on account of this discussion is the veriest of bosh. While feeling ran high at times, after the final vote was taken, all was harmony again and they realized that they were brothers," Mr. Day says.

'OUR SAM' TALKS UGLY ABOUT THE ELECTRICIANS

Petition to Require Conduits Gives Him Chance to Spout

A lively discussion resulted at the meeting of the Glendale council last night as a result of a petition received by that body from a number of electrical contractors of the city asking that the electrical ordinance be changed so as to call for the use of conduits in the electric work on all buildings in the city.

Councilman Davis was emphatic in his denunciation of such a change.

"It's just another attempt on the part of the electrical contractors to gouge the people," said Councilman Davis. "Some time ago they came in and requested a change in the electrical ordinance and this was granted to them. This change caused an increase of between three and four dollars in the cost of wiring a 5-room bungalow. Instead of increasing their costs to this amount, the contractors doubled the price of wiring the 5-room bungalow and work on all other types of homes was practically doubled."

"I talked to an electrical contractor recently and he said on the previous occasion the price of electrical work was raised sufficient to cover the cost of conduit and that all the electrical workers want is an ordinance calling for conduit and they will put it in."

"I tell you that talk is all bunk. If we specify conduit, which costs from 15 cents a foot up to three dollars, they will immediately raise the price of their jobs, on the claim that they cannot provide conduit for the old price. We got the blame for the last big jump in the price of electrical work and we would get the blame for the increase that would occur if we passed this amendment to the electrical ordinance."

The petition was laid on the table.

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

About 100 were in attendance at the first of the series of six weekly meetings of the annual School of Missions conducted by the Central Christian church on Wednesday night. There were five classes in all, two of the home mission study book and three on the foreign mission study book. Meetings of the mission school will be held from 7:45 p. m. until 9 o'clock each Wednesday for six weeks. Mrs. C. A. Cole is dean of the school and the instructors include Miss Florence Heacock, juniors, Mrs. Floyd Mercer, seniors, Mrs. R. C. Logan, women; Rev. C. A. Coleman; Floyd Mercer, young people.

ARRESTED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

J. H. Baldwin of 1012 East Maple street was arrested on Los Feliz road near the Southern Pacific crossing on a charge of reckless driving. He was arraigned this afternoon before Judge F. H. Lowe.

WELFARE CHEST COMMITTEES IN JOINT SESSION

Week of Nov. 19 to 24 Is Set as Time of Drive for Funds

Committees of the Glendale Welfare chest which met in joint session at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday night fixed the date of the drive for the chest from the 19th to the 24th of November, or the week before Thanksgiving. This date was adopted on the recommendation of Dr. H. R. Harrower who said: "I believe that the season of Thanksgiving is the time of all times to put this thing over." This will give six weeks of preparation for the drive.

The session was called to order by the president, W. E. Hewitt, who briefly explained the purpose of the chest and who read from a leaflet published by the Pasadena Community chest, the answers to most questions propounded or objections raised to a community chest.

The question of securing outside help was debated and it was generally agreed that the enterprise would be more likely to command the confidence of the public if confined to Glendale workers, though the counsel of chest officials from Pasadena and San Diego would be desirable.

A committee composed of Attorney James F. McBryde, E. F. Sanders and Charles Guthrie was named to prepare article of incorporation.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell insisted on tendering her resignation as chairman of the committee on budget and indorsement, and it was accepted with regret by the chairman who undertook to find another chairman from the board of directors. The services of Mrs. Helen MacMillin, chairman of civics of the Tuesday Afternoon club were tendered by Mrs. Campbell and gratefully accepted.

No list of chest beneficiaries was named, that being left to the budget committee, which is expected to get to work immediately and report its recommendations to the Welfare Chest organization before the drive begins. It was agreed that it should include a reserve fund of $5000 to cover special emergency calls like the benefits for the families of men killed in the mountain fire of last Saturday.

JOG AT BROADWAY AND CENTRAL ONCE MORE CONSIDERED

The matter of eliminating as far as possible the jog at the intersection of Broadway and Central was resurrected Thursday night by the Glendale city council in conjunction with O. M. Newby, and a decision was made to endeavor, once more, to put through this much needed improvement.

In reply to the question as to whether there would be a chance for the desired results being accomplished, Mr. Newby said: "We might be able to put it over. Three of the principal objectors to that improvement have moved from the district affected and I think another attempt should be made to eliminate the jog."

This discussion took place as a result of a petition from the West Broadway Improvement association for the widening of that thoroughfare from Central to Pacific. Proceedings were ordered started immediately.

Deputy City Engineer Stone was instructed to confer with Mr. Newby for the purpose of ascertaining the chance of eliminating the jog at Broadway, should this work be taken up.

COMPETITION AIDS SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

This year at the Wilson avenue school attendance is being stimulated by competition between classes, a school banner being held each month by the class having the largest percentage of attendance the previous month. The score for the first four weeks ran as follows: A-1, 98.5; Miss Edith Tyler being the teacher of the class; B-2 had 98.6, Miss Circle, teacher; A-2, 97.4, per cent, Miss Potter, teacher; B-4, 97.6 per cent, Miss Wheeler, teacher. Enrollment reports at the end of the first four weeks showed 530 boys and 278 girls, or a total of 808 pupils in the school.

SCIOT CIRCUS WILL DRAW RINGS ALL AROUND 'EM

All Kinds of "Big Top" Acts, Side Shows and the Like

All doubts concerning the reality of the Sciot circus are soon to be set at rest. The big tent which is to house it will be erected this week on a lot on the west side of Brand at the corner of Milford street. The entrance will be on that corner and the south half of the enclosure will be devoted to the joy-making midway. At the north end will be the circus ring where twelve big ring acts will be presented in two shows nightly by the Carl Horney Circus, one beginning at 7:30, the second at 9 o'clock.

Around the outside of the tent will be the booths of concessionaires and six big side shows, some of them having been with the Barnum & Bailey circus.

The concessions are to be of the most approved circus character. Hot dogs, the hotter the better, will be conveniently placed with reference to cooling wet goods.

Members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Mark's church, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Philip Kemp, wife of the pastor, will conduct the popcorn concession, dressed as farmerettes.

There will be fortune tellers, of course, in approved Oriental trappings, seers born with the double veil, and those not so distinguished.

Toparch Bennett reports that 25,000 tickets have been sold to date and these will increase with the approach of the opening date, October 23, and especially when the band begins to play—the Sciot band, which will give a concert on the downtown streets Saturday night to advertise the show.

The Gardner car that is to be given away will also be on display that evening and parade the streets with the band. All the kiddies will want to come out for this street festivity because several thousands of balloons will be given away.

NEW YORKERS AND JERSEYITES LOSE HEAVILY IN BOOZE

[By Associated Press]

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Federal prosecutors and prohibition forces have dealt bootlegging strongholds of New York City and the state of New Jersey hard blows.

Developments in the last 24 hours have been:

Disclosure of a plot to swamp New York with New Jersey beer to the exclusion of the product of breweries in other neighboring states.

Arrest of 11 persons, including a New Jersey state official, a prohibition agent, a warehouse man, four wealthy brewers, two dealers in alcohol and two alleged "go-betweens."

Charges by United States District Attorney Hayward that his agents, inveigled participants in the plot to turn over $80,000 as part payment of bribes which were to have reached $100,000.

Disclosure by E. B. Esterbrook, special customs agent, that sixty rum boats, $500,000 worth of liquor and 130 prisoners had been taken in raids on offshoot craft.

Seizure of three truckloads of New Jersey beer brought into Manhattan shortly after the arrest of the eleven bootleg conspirators, most of them at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Hayward filed suit to invoke the padlock law against 54 saloons, cafes and cabarets, announced it is only a preliminary to the closing of two thousand openly conducted places in New York City.

ZEVE WILL RACE PAPYRUS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Zev will today be pronounced at and will race Papyrus tomorrow in the 100,000 international classic at Belmont Park. This announcement was made Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club's race committee, after a careful inspection had been made of the Rancocas colt, which developed a sudden skin malady overnight, but which, it was believed, would not interfere with the animal's running.

GASOLINE SOLD IN GLENDALE IS TO BE STANDARDIZED

The Glendale city council took steps last night to provide the automobile owners of this city with a standard grade of gasoline, the intention being to eliminate the cheap, lower grades of gasoline that, it is claimed, are being dispensed at some of the service stations in this city.

This action was taken as a result of a communication from F. H. Everts, who operates a gasoline station at the southeast corner of Central and Broadway. In this letter Mr. Everts stated that the average standard of gasoline sold in Glendale is lower than that in Los Angeles and that auto fuel that is sold here could not be disposed of in the Angel City.

Mr. Everts' communication follows: "I understand the city of Glendale has no ordinance in regard to the quality of gasoline sold here, and gasoline that cannot be sold in Los Angeles can be sold in Glendale. To protect the users of gasoline, I ask you to pass an ordinance in regard to same. Enclosed find copy of Los Angeles ordinance, and also government specifications."

The city attorney was instructed to draft for Glendale a gasoline ordinance similar to the one in force in Los Angeles.

K. C. INSTALLATION DRAWS MANY VISITORS

Talks by Knights Jenal and Eckenrode, Also Chaplain Galvin

Installation of officers of Glendale Council No. 1920, Knights of Columbus, took place at the council chamber, 330 East Lomita avenue, on Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock, with Peter L. Ferry as the installing officer. The club house was crowded with members and a delegation from Pasadena and also a large delegation, from Council No. 621 of Los Angeles, of which Grand Knight Jesse Smith and Financial Secretary Fred Huesman were former members.

The hall was beautifully decorated by Hugh Bryan of the Verdugo Dahlia farm with a profusion of dahlias. After the regular business meeting the district deputy took charge and installed the following officers: Jesse Smith, grand knight; Ed Albright, deputy grand knight; Rev. Father Michael Galvin, chaplain; T. J. Keleher, advocate; Edward Brehne, chancellor; F. H. Huesman, financial secretary; Randolph Doh, treasurer; T. J. Mulcahy, warden; Leo McMahon, trustee; J. O'Neill Farrell, inside guard; J. W. Wallace, outside guard.

Grand Knight Eckenrode of Pasadena then made a short talk and called attention to the fact that Pasadena will have the K. C. state convention in 1924. Rev. Father Michael Galvin, chaplain of the council, gave a very learned address on "The Beauties of Knighthood."

The main speaker of the evening was Frank Jenal of Los Angeles, who gave a talk on the "Constitution of Americanism."

Auto Camps to Be Strictly Regulated

Glendale's automobile camp grounds will hereafter be constructed along plans outlined by the city and must be made absolutely sanitary and attractive, according to a decision of the council Thursday night. The matter of outlining the type of camp desired was put up to the chief of police and health officer of this city.

These operating camps in this city hereafter will be compelled to conform in every way to the diagrams, arrangements of buildings, sanitation features, etc., of the plan suggested by these city officials.

This action was taken as a result of an application to operate an auto camp filed with the council by R. J. Dixon, 511 Oak street, who plans to conduct a camp at 146 South San Fernando road and to put Henry W. Detwiler in charge.

In the plan proposed by Mr. Dixon, there are 87 cabins, each 12x14 feet, streets 20 feet wide, 10 feet between houses, eleven toilets, slop hoppers, garbage platforms, community laundry, store, office, six shower baths, etc.

WILL CITY BUDGET SHOW DEFICIT THIS YEAR?

This Will Be True Unless Some Cut Is Made in Expenses

Unless some cut in operation expenses is made, Glendale's municipal expenses will exceed the budget during this fiscal year, according to indications contained in the official quarterly report of Controller H. C. Saulsbury, which was received in the committee of the whole last night by the city council.

Owing to the operation of the new motor vehicle act, revenue from police court fines estimated in the budget at $37,600 probably will not exceed $32,705—making a deficit in the revenue of $13,895.

Revenue from police court fines during the first two months of the fiscal year was $5687 for July and $5868 for August. The new law went into effect the first of September and revenue for last month, which was the only month it was in operation, decreased to $1,215.

Supposed that this was a fair monthly average, revenue to be derived from this source during the remaining nine months of the fiscal year will be nine times this amount, or $10,935.

The total revenue from police court fines, according to this calculation, will be $11,555 for the first two months, $1,215 for September and $10,935 for the balance of the year, or a total of $23,705. Under the new motor vehicle act, all fines collected for traffic violations must be spent for the improvement of streets. These fines, which represent a large proportion of all money collected by the police court, are automatically placed in the street improvement fund.

If there is to be a deficit of $13,895 in the revenue for the improvement of streets, it is believed at the city hall that this sum must remain unspent.

The general unappropriated reserve fund from which this sum might have been borrowed, was reduced, when the budget was made out, from an estimate submitted by City Manager W. H. Reeves and City Controller H. C. Saulsbury of about $25,000 to $14,520. Of this sum, $3,752 has been expended already, leaving a balance on hand of only $5,768. This amount will be spent in projects which have been authorized by the city administration.

NEARLY 600 PUPILS IN GRAND VIEW SCHOOL

Miss Vera Sinclair, principal of the Grand View school, reports many additional pupils enrolled within the past two weeks which have brought the total for that school to approximately 600. This is a wonderful showing for the northwest and explains why additional school accommodations are required there in spite of the additions to the school plant just completed.

WOE BE TO YE HOME BREWERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Prohibition Commissioner Maynes has launched a new campaign against brew. In order to stamp out what he characterizes as the "menace" of the trafficking in home brew ingredients, he announced today that he would revoke the permits of all breweries which continue the practice of making malt syrups, which as a base for home-made beers.

CAN THEY GET TOGETHER?

Charles B. Guthrie is doing jury service in Los Angeles. He and E. F. Sanders of the Chamber of Commerce are in different departments but it was argued they could manage to meet with James McBryde, who also spends a good deal of time in the courts, and transact the business of the Community Chest committee, on which the three were appointed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Judge George Fleming Moore, past sovereign grand commander of the supreme council of the Scottish Rite Masons in Alabama, resigned from the supreme council after a discussion over the Ku Klux Klan. During the debate Mr. Moore was charged by the members of the council of using his publication, The Fellowship Forum, issued here for furthering the aims of the Klan.

KIWANIANS WILL STAGE WONDERS FOR KIDDIES

Costume March, Big Feed, Harold Lloyd Comedy, on Hallowe'en

Gather 'round, kids—the big things are on.

You know Hallowe'en, don't you? Well, there's going to be a whale of a time this year. The Kiwanis club decided today at its luncheon at the Tuesday Afternoon club to give you fellows—this meaning every boy and girl in Glendale—the biggest time of the year. You never had such a time as this club is going to give you. There'll be everything you can think of, even to the hot dogs and confetti.

Here's the plan—Shortly after the sun has gone to rest and the shadows have fallen on Wednesday, October 31, the boys and girls of the city will gather on the High school campus. At a given time the guests will form in line at Colorado and Louise and will march, escorted by Kiwanians, to Brand, then to Wilson, back to Broadway, and back to the High school campus.

When the crowd gets back a great big bonfire will be awaiting. This will last for a half hour, and the hundreds of boys and girls will sit and dance around it while eating their refreshments. When the fire dies down fireworks will be started and these will last for a half hour.

After the fireworks will come the crowning feature of the occasion—a Harold Lloyd comedy. A screen will be hung on the campus and with the hundreds of children and grown-ups sitting on the campus this picture will be run off. During the evening there will be lots of little extras—things that every boy and girl in Glendale will be glad to see.

And best of all, kids—all this fun isn't going to cost you a penny—not a red copper. It's all free—given to the youngsters of Glendale, from the kindergarten to the High school, by the Kiwanis club.

Every youngster attending is expected to be in costume—the funnier the better, and there will be several prizes for the most unique makeup.

An announcement of the district convention of the Kiwanis club which will be held at Fresno on November 16 and 17 was given by Don Webb, secretary, and as many members as possible were urged to attend. The caravan will leave San Fernando at 8 o'clock on the morning of November 15, and a stop will be made at Lebec, with luncheon at Bakersfield.

On motion of "Doc" Anderson, $25 was pledged to the relief fund (as being collected for the families of the recent fire victims. The members, it is understood, will make individual subscriptions.

VERDUGO CANYON TO HAVE FIRE HOUSE

Verdugo Canyon will get a fire house.

The Glendale city council Thursday night ordered one of the city's fire trucks moved to the Verdugo canyon and placed in a temporary building that was offered to the city by F. P. Newport, owner of Verdugo Woodlands. The building will be placed on the city's property in the canyon.

Following this action by the council that body decided to accept the offer of Mr. Newport of a site for a permanent fire house in the business section of Canada boulevard, and the city manager and chief of police were instructed to negotiate with him for a suitable site for the proposed fire house, the idea of the council being to make this house sufficiently large to house two fire apparatus.

The permanent fire house that will be built in the canyon will cost at least $5000. This is the lowest figure called for in the restrictions of the business section of Verdugo Woods. This house will probably be made either of brick or concrete and will be ornamental as well as useful.

This action on the part of the council was taken at the conclusion of an address by Mr. Newport. In his talk, Mr. Newport called attention to the danger to the city of Glendale of the dry brush that lies in the hills to the north of Glendale. He asked the council to take immediate steps to establish suitable firebreaks on the hills on the west side of the canyon.

"If the fire of last Saturday had occurred on the west side of the Verdugo canyon instead of the east with the strong wind blowing as it did from the north," said Mr. Newport, "there probably would have been a different story to tell. In that event the city of Glendale might now be a heap of ruins. The sparks and burning pieces of brush would have fallen on the homes of the city and there is no telling where the trouble might have ended."

"I believe that the section to the north could be zoned for $3500 or $4000 and that this would eliminate a great deal of the danger. The county would probably help pay for this work. I think immediate action should be taken."

"I have taken this matter up with the fire chief," said Councilman Horn, "and he says he has a fire truck that he could move to that northern section immediately."

Friend Husband will very quickly approve the policy of keeping ice in the house all the year around after he once learns the real economy of this plan.

Ice will really pay for itself in the food it saves, and in addition, it keeps your food in a pure, wholesome condition that is not possible without ice.

Scientists will tell you that all perishable food begins to deteriorate rapidly when the thermometer reaches 50 degrees, or warmer, and during the Fall the thermometer is often above 50 degrees.

It's both prudence and economy to keep your refrigerator well filled with ice all the time.

BROADWAY P.-T. A. HEARS ABOUT THE FAMILY BUDGET

Committee Chairmen Are Appointed and a Program Given

At the second meeting of the Broadway P.-T. A. held in the auditorium of the school Thursday afternoon, plans were made and committees appointed for Father's night, which will be a Hallowe'en affair celebrated October 26 and in charge of Mrs. William Wickert, Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, Mrs. Rettberg and Mrs. Riggs.

The president, Mrs. A. E. Reese, who made a gracious presiding officer, announced chairmen of standing committees as follows: Membership, Mrs. Killinger; courtesy, Mrs. Paul Brown; visiting, Mrs. M. A. Bryant; philanthropy, Mrs. P. R. Hill; publicity, Mrs. J. A. Foulkes; patriotism, Mrs. D. S. Ferguson; juvenile court representative, Mrs. Tuomy; program, Mrs. William Wickert; child labor and legislation, Mrs. P. S. McNitt; playground, Mrs. E. V. Griffin; child hygiene, Mrs. W. E. Mercer; thrift, Mrs. Bonham; magazines and emblems, Mrs. Johanson; kindergarten, Miss Chapman.

Mrs. Williams was given a vote of thanks for providing a handsome lamp shade for the platform lamp, which was a gift to the association.

Mrs. Rettberg presented to Mrs. Ryan, the principal, a banner for the school, mounted on a standard, which was received with enthusiasm and properly acknowledged by Mrs. Ryan, who suggested that it be held from month to month by the room having to its credit the largest percentage of mothers in attendance on the P.-T. A. sessions. When the room count of the sixty or more ladies present was taken, it gave the banner for the coming month to Miss John's room, which had a percentage of 26.

Mrs. Ryan spoke on the school savings bank system, briefly reviewing the history of the movement and stating that the savings in the Broadway school last year amounted to $359.25, and to date this year have totalled $147, the stamp receipts from September 20 to October 15 amounting to $88.47.

The address of the afternoon was made by Miss Lynch of the Domestic Science department of the University of California, Southern Branch. Her theme was "A Family Budget." She declared the high cost of living has made it times critical, especially for families with a moderate income ranging from $1500 to $2500. The generally accepted division of an income, she said, was: Shelter, 20 percent; food, 25 percent; clothing, 15 percent; running expenses, 15 percent; for saving and the higher life, 25 percent. The disposition is to cut too much on the food side, she said.

The program opened with a salute to the flag and the singing of the P.-T. A. song. Other numbers were: A demonstration of the Chautauqua Child Desk by Miss Hudson and a reading by the same young lady entitled "In the Closet." Miss Jacobs contributed vocal solos, "In the Bud," and "Persicacity." Little Elizabeth Hoffman recited "The Baby Brother," and "When Dad is Sick." At the close of this much enjoyed entertainment tea and wafers were served by the courtesy committee.

WILSON AVE. SCHOOL IN ATHLETIC PROGRAM

The athletic program at the Wilson Avenue Intermediate Thursday afternoon assumed the proportions of a field day. The intermediate soccer team played the Glendale Intermediate with a score of 2 to 1 in favor of Wilson.

On the girls' side of the playground, three volley ball games were played—seniors, juniors and intermediates against corresponding teams from the Glendale Avenue Intermediate. Seniors and juniors of Wilson were winners, honors for the intermediate game going to girls of the Glendale Avenue school. About 200 girls were on the field at one time. On both fields were large crowds of spectators including enthusiastic fans to spur the players to their noblest efforts.

Tonight the senior soccer teams of the two schools will play on the Wilson field.

CLUB LADIES MAKE CORSAJE BOUQUETS

An accessory that adds much to the effect of the fashionable woman's attire is that bit of color found in the corsage bouquet, and it was in the making of these that the members of Arts and Crafts section A of the Tuesday Afternoon club found unusual interest at the meeting held Thursday in the palm court. Miss Elizabeth Saunders of Long Beach was the instructor. Many of the beautiful flowers were made from white or light-colored velvet and then tinted by the members. There were more than twenty members of this section, of which Mrs. H. A. McPherson is curator, present. So popular is the work of the arts and crafts becoming that a request has been made by the board of directors for the organization of a third section in this line of work.

HONOR PASTOR AND NEW MEMBERS

On Tuesday night the members and friends of the Pacific avenue Methodist church entertained with a reception for new members and for Rev. Mullen, who has been re-appointed to serve here for another year, and his family. Everyone was happy that Rev. Mullen will continue his work in Glendale and pledged themselves to join him during a great work for the coming year. Rev. Mullen responded with an appropriate talk. An interesting program was given, including the community singing of "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds," piano solo by Miss Sarah Hommer; vocal duet, "Whispering Hope," by Miss Hommer and George Moore; talks by Mr. Moore

Truths in Epigram

Many things difficult to design prove easy to perform.—Johnson.

This same philosophy is a good horse in the stable, but an arrogant jade on a journey.—Goldsmith.

Love is the life of man.—Swedenborg.

Love can hope where Reason would despair.—Lord Lyttelton.

ANXIOUS FOR THE TRUTH

The people of this country are anxious to know the truth about Russia. They cannot hope to learn it from the statements of men sent thither at the expense of a bolshevist sympathizer to be guests of the soviets. They cannot find a trace of it in the statements of the leaders of the present regime. Therefore, for the matter is of deep concern, they welcome the statement of an investigator who went to Russia in quest of the facts, observed the facts, and now comes home to relate them. Such an observer is Congressman Britten of Illinois.

Mr. Britten had been an advocate of at least such recognition of Russia as would permit the resumption of trade relations. How his views have been changed by actual contact with conditions may perhaps best be expressed by excerpts from his own statement. He mentions Russia as a "visionary government whose very foundation is based on murder, anarchy and theft," and for this he opposes any form of recognition.

He had tried, he said, to "see the good side of the tremendous political theory that is now holding 150,000,000 people in subjection." He had come away "quite convinced that any recognition of bolshevism Russia is only lending strength to a cause that sooner or later must fail."

According to Mr. Britten "Russia is ruled in silent terror by a clique of theoretical dreamers who are too stubborn to admit their wrong." He declared that communist leaders maintain an autocratic control; that those who dissent are "instantly converted by their democratic instruments of persuasion, the gun or the jail." Free speech is unknown and the censorship is the most rigorous ever enforced anywhere. To continue in his own words:

"Atheism is being generally taught and religion and Christ are being cartooned in ridiculous attitudes. Most of the churches are closed because of government opposition. A large sign at the entrance of the Kremlin palace reads 'Religion is the opium of the state,' while another pet slogan of the bolsheviks is 'Religion is the tool of the rich to oppress the poor.' Mr. Britten had an interview with Tchitcherin, who told him that the speech of the late President Harding had closed the door to hope for a meeting of the countries on the commercial treaty. He told the visitor frankly that there was not the slightest intention of paying the old debts of Russia adding that 'autocrats and rich men were merely parasites on labor.' Truly an odd sentiment from one of the big figures of a regime that has enslaved labor, denying it even the consolation of wages.

Nor could Mr. Britten place faith in the new Russian money, which he regarded as based on doubtful credit, and destined, when the present Russian government breaks up, to be worthless as the ruble. Petrograd he found had been reduced in population by half a million souls, and to "look like a summer resort city in the winter-time."

Such are the conclusions of a congressman of high standing. It would seem worth while to consider them.

THE PROFESSOR'S PEACE

Prof. Robert C. Denison, occupying the chair of philosophy at Pomona college, has a plan for achievement and maintenance of world peace. It involves elimination of the idea that wars are necessary to civilization, a changed viewpoint in the matter of hero psychology, and complete revision of the present economic system.

Perhaps there is no flaw in the project thus briefly stated. To make the world perfect there would be necessity only for the removal of imperfections; nothing could be plainer. It is possible to have a great and benign idea, and yet lack method as to applying it. The Golden Rule covers the whole ground. Were nations and individuals to live according to its tenets, there would be tranquility, undisturbed by public conflict or private quarrel. Nobody finds fault with the Golden Rule. All recognize its benignity and wisdom. In theory it solves every problem that vexes.

It is to be feared that a similar moral laxness will render the scheme of the professor ineffective. It is alright, and fine, but such are human frailties that it won't work. "The complete revision of the present economic system" may be mentioned easily enough. If in such revision lies the remedy, there is none of intelligence so august as to tell the nations how to do it; or to bring them into a mood to make the attempt. Mortal selfishness is an equation that may not be overlooked. Men may be aware that greed is harmful, but they have not yet been taught to care whether it is harmful or not, so that the harm fall elsewhere than on themselves.

Generalizations are easy, and to a professor of philosophy, they must be particularly easy. But if will take something besides generalization to win the Bok prize. The dream of peace comes first of course, but the realization of peace must be the work of the dreamer who has awakened.

AN AUTOMOBILE AGE

Probably few have stopped to consider the influence of the automobile upon business and social life, and the expansion of communities. Cities are growing with a speed that would have been impossible save for the automobile. Persons working in town are living at distance from their places of employment that in old times would have been out of the question. The machine, at first the luxury of the well-to-do, has become the necessity of the wage-earner.

About every house in course of construction anywhere in this region where building operations are seen on every hand, there will be seen a group of automobiles. Some of these are of the cheaper types, but not all by any means. These machines belong to the carpenter, the mason, the painter, the plumber. The men may be working in the suburbs of Pasadena, and yet the homes of some of them will be at the beaches, in Los Angeles, or the cities towards the mountains. The point is that without the use of the automobile they could not keep the engagements that now present no difficulty. Twenty or thirty miles to and from work does not represent a hardship. But for automobiles, workmen could not be distributed as it is vital to distribute them to maintain the rate of growth, that, extraordinary as it is, has come to be regarded as normal.

To the automobile must be credited a large part of the good roads which have rendered markets accessible, opened scenic vistas, and permitted country dwellers to enjoy most of the comforts available in urban life. Now that this section has become so populous, it is imperative that one who lives here should have an automobile. Otherwise he is cut off from business and social contacts.

There is complaint of congestion on the highways and in the streets. There is no chance that a remedy ever will appear in a lessened number of machines. On the contrary demands for space for the use of these vehicles are becoming more pronounced. Any cure for congestion will have to be in ampler space for the lines of travel, and in more room for the machines to be parked.

AIRPLANES AND MORALS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

So far airplanes have contributed practically nothing to juvenile delinquency. That may come later when they are in general use, provided, of course, that the human race lasts that long.

Only one thing about airplanes now seems certain, they will shortly make it possible for nations to exterminate each other quickly and thoroughly.

Lieutenant Al Williams has demonstrated through his navy plane the possibility of air travel at the appalling rate of five miles a minute. Think that over and realize that airplane development is yet in its infancy or its early youth. With fleets of airplanes capable of such ferocity of speed fancy the conditions in the next war. And while you are doing your fancying read this resolution drawn up by the International Commission of Jurists representing the five great nations which agreed at Washington to the limitation of naval armaments. The jurists met at The Hague and no doubt felt warmly that they were racial and social benefactors when they laid down this rule for aerial control in war:

"Aerial bombardment is legitimate only when directed at a military objective."

The gentlemen then define a "military objective" as something that would be serviceable to an enemy in war.

With that definition most everything in an enemy country would be a "military objective." Certainly cities, markets, farms, factories, transportation systems, boats, power houses and so on ad infinitum could be defined as "military objectives" and so be brought under the sentence of destruction.

Our senate will be called upon at the next session to ratify The Hague regulations. After the ratification we can all sit back and feel safe. It will be distinctly illegal for anybody to blow us up from an airplane unless we are useful to our country in war.

Meantime the adventurous young men of the army and navy are perfecting airplanes, seaplanes and all the devilish things that will make them effective instruments of destruction.

And the people who are not so engaged are busy talking war, thinking war, planning war and behaving so that war ultimately will be inevitable.

Anyhow, when nations go to war who cares a baubee about legality?

So speed and deviltry by distributing the risks of war may force us finally to a general adoption of the Golden Rule. We will become moral not because we enjoy it but because if we do not we will become extinct.

And if extinction overtakes us we will not have to worry about juvenile delinquency.

To the everlasting credit of the boys who fought the last war, they see the menace in the development. The American Legion has called for and is using all its influence to bring about an international conference for the limitation of air armaments in the interest of world peace.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Miss Lyddy Case came over to see us last night. Once upon a time Miss Lyddy spent some years in Europe, during which period she became roughly acquainted with some of the more outlying portions of one or two foreign languages. Until that time she had always believed that French is pronounced just as it is written, and she has confessed that it still seems absurd to her that a Frenchman should say "avee" when he really means "with."

"My new dress," I heard her say to Mrs. Pilgrim, "is lovely. We call it moiray, you know." The prattle moved on, touching a neighbor or two on its way in a fashion that accounts for striking lack of friendly coordination on our street. Miss Lyddy said:

"Quand meme, as we say in France—even so, you know."

She went to the races at Chantilly, she said—"Ch-a-n-t-i-l-l-y, you know."

It was out of pure good nature that I intervened. I could feel Mrs. Pilgrim's temper glowing like a furnace behind me. In a few moments more she would have risen with a shriek, like Boadicea or someone, and smitten Miss Lyddy Case where she stood. Nothing arouses Mrs. P.'s easily aroused ire more rapidly than sham learning of this sort. Once I heard her tell an offender that:

"If you think I cannot understand your French don't use it. Speak English. And if you think I can, speak French. But don't try to conduct an infant class. It's all cheap brag, you know!"

Our neighborhood seems to be specially full of Miss Lyddy Cases. But I think, you know, most of the trouble can be traced right back to Miss Lyddy herself. One simply has to swank a little before her or else "sink" without a ripple.

"For hundreds of years the Cases—" Miss Lyddy once started to say.

So I headed her off by telling about my ancestral castle back in Wales. Yet I do not think we ever had a castle. My conviction is that they hunted my ancestors with beagles.

THE LISTENING POST

CHAPTER VII

The coal cutter, the operator of that machine that takes the place of many men with picks, moves on to another ledge for another cut. His machine moves upon its own track and with its own power and traction. It is a little digging giant in a steel box, driven by electricity. Then comes the miner to the room where the coal has been undercut.

JAMES W. FOLEY

served for another workman, who specializes in it. While it is easy work, I do not crave the job.

The individual who does this work of blowing down the coal and leaving it on the floor of the room for the miner to load into cars is called the "shot firer." He is expert, as you may know. If he were not there would be few coal miners and fewer shot firers.

After the day shift has left the mine, the miners having loaded their coal into mine cars and sent them whizzing up the track to the mine opening, where they are weighed and each miner's output reckoned from the tag number which he places on each of his cars, corresponding to the brass check number he carries, the night crew goes in and sees to the things needed to be done in the way of pumping and care. And then at midnight, after the night crew comes out, in goes the shot firer.

Rather shivery job, you would say, three miles back in the mine, with nothing but darkness, under cut ledges, holes for dynamite and you. And all this at midnight. But midday and midnight are all the same in the mine. The shot firer makes his charges for firing from the materials left by the miner at the bottom of the ledge. He does his own tamping.

And when all the holes are charged and tamped, he steps away from there and explodes or detonates the charges with an electric button. And down come tons of coal upon the floor for loading the following day.

The shot firer is out of the mine at 3 o'clock in the morning. His work of blowing down hundreds of tons of coal is done. And when he did it no other soul was in the mine. For if through any mishap there was a disastrous explosion through the mine only one life was risked. And after the shot firer finishes his work the inspectors enter, in the small hours of the morning.

The inspector carries a lamp with an enclosed flame. He goes through all turns and corners and rooms and chambers of the mine. The presence of gas in dangerous quantities is at once told unmistakably by his enclosed lamp. It will flare high and go out, or there is a tiny explosion within the lamp chamber. In any case, the presence of dangerous gas pockets is immediately reported and the mine bosses take steps to see that it is all cleared out and the air pure before the men enter the mine for the day's work.

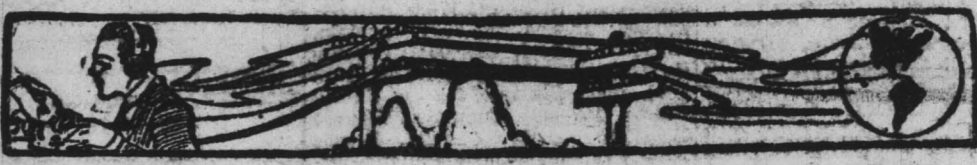

Every precaution is taken to prevent accident. But with the greatest precaution, carelessness somewhere, a disobedience of rules, or sometimes an unexplainable cause will result in disaster. The mines of this company for twelve years were free from any considerable accident until a little over a year ago.

Then in one of the mines, just at quitting time, when most of the men were out, but a score remained, there was an explosion. Gas was ignited somewhere and instantly the almost impalpable dust that floats in the air and clings to everything in the mine was exploded. The miner says a dust explosion has thrice the force of a gas explosion. It will blow down supports, tear out concrete walls, and tear the body of a man to bits. Nothing will resist its awful force.

In the instance of which I speak, seventeen men lost their lives. Some were instantly killed where they stood. The force of the explosion felled them as a sledge would fell an ox. They never rose. Two men were blown clear out of the mouth of the mine and badly bruised when they were hurled against standing coal cars. Some were trapped by falling rock and coal and beams and suffocated by the deadly gas that floated with deadly progress through the mine after the explosion, as though it were seeking out to destroy every living thing.

Instantly the noise of the explosion told of disaster, and mine rescuers were at work. Ventilators were instantly set to work to clear the mine of gas. And through debris and fallen timbers and rock and coal the men were sought. But the explosion and gas had done its deadly work. And seventeen men were brought out dead.

"I Saw Two Clouds"—By J. G. C. Brainard

I saw two clouds at morning,
Tinged by the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one;
I thought that morning cloud was blest,
It moved so sweetly to the west.

Such be your gentle motion,
Till life's last pulse shall beat;
Like summer's beam and summer's stream,
Float on, in joy, to meet
A calmer sea, where storms shall cease,
A purer sky, where all is peace.

WILL ADAMS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IF YOU should ever go to Japan and make port first at Yokohama, and if you are at all inclined to value the pleasure of pure sentiment, take the train out about nineteen miles to Yokosuka, a picturesque town at the foot of the hills overlooking Tokyo Bay.

At the rear of the town, crowding the summit of one of the hills, is the Grave of Will Adams. Beside him lies his Japanese wife. Nearby is a monument which was unveiled in 1912. The inscription upon its face apprises the stranger that "the graves of Will Adams and his wife are on the summit of the hill."

Certain names in history and in fiction become permanent personifications of certain feelings, ideas or emotions. Uriah Heep will always stand for smirking humility, Jeffreys for the bloody-minded judge, Jean Valjean for conscientious nobility, Arnold for treachery, and Nathan Hale for patriotic heroism. Will Adams is the pathetic figure of the Exile. He was an Englishman, a boat, and the English probably love their homes more than do any other people. Adams was a native of Kent in England. He was appointed sailing master of a fleet of Dutch trading vessels which set out on an expedition to the East Indies in 1598. The fleet was wrecked and

Adams was landed in Japan in 1600.

"Because of his knowledge of shipbuilding, mathematics, and foreign affairs in general," says Terry, "and because also he was bluff and honest and unlike the fawning Dutch traders and the shift Jersuitical Jortingalls, he became a great favorite with the ruler of the country, the Shogun Ieyasu, who by golden promises induced (and perhaps forced) him to stay in Japan, where he was appointed a teacher of mathematics and artillery, was employed as an intermediary with the foreign traders, and was presented with a large fleet of land."

It was perhaps this Englishman whose genius laid the foundations of both English and Dutch trade with the country.

Some of his letters have been preserved and have been published by the Hakluyt Society. Their quaintly spelt pages give a life-like impression of the writer and an interesting picture of Japan as it then was, when the land swarmed with Catholic friars and Catholic converts, and when no embargo had as yet been laid on foreign commerce.

He constantly reiterated his desire to see his native land again and his wife and children. "History and the drama have woven an appealing romance about this sad, solitary figure held in friendly captivity far from his native land, and the sympathetic mind can easily picture him standing on the summit of the hill which was later to be his grave, gazing wistfully, and with straining eyes, at the lovely sea unrolled at his feet, beyond which were the wife and kindred and country he was never more to see."

So far as the wife was concerned, he partially comforted himself, sailor fashion, by taking another, a Japanese woman with whom he lived comfortably for many years on the estate granted him by Ieyasu.

Those who enjoy a bit of pathetic reflection may find a valuable hour in standing upon this hill on a clear day and looking over the undulating country which is very beautiful. The woods are sweet and unadorned, a host of wild flowers grow in the underbrush, and singing birds enliven the neighborhood.

And silently in the air hovers the ghost of bluff, sturdy, honest Will Adams, the English sailor who went away and never saw his home again.

This was written before the earthquake. What the place now is like I do not know.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Always more contradictory stuff about Germany. The mind becomes confused in contemplation of it. One day it will be a cry that starvation impends. The next it will be a declaration that Germany could pay its debts if such were its desire. The common person, not professing to be diplomatist or economist, is left with mouth agape.

President Hibben of Princeton is just back from Germany. He says that country is playing a waiting game. He does not question its solvency. He says that Germany is able to pay reparations but things by holding off, to evade the necessity.

"I did not find any evidence of poverty or unusual distress in Germany," he says.

He calls attention to the significance of the heavy purchases by German manufacturers of cotton and copper, the buying being in the United States. The sum of $72,000,000 was paid for the former commodity and $17,000,000 for the latter. Payment was in good money.

The interview with Dr. Hibben followed just twenty-four hours after the allegation that 2,000,000 German children would have to be fed by alien charity, or starve this winter.

Certainly there is one set of reports that fail to dovetail with the verities.

Perhaps the floods in Oklahoma will have the effect of diverting the minds of citizens from their political troubles. Otherwise the floods must be regarded as wholly without merit. They have been extremely disastrous.

The people of Oklahoma will have the sympathy of the whole country, and if they want anything more than that, all they have to do is to say so.

Lloyd George said a wise thing in a recent speech when he counseled Americans not to forget the war. There is nothing about their participation in it, unless the late start and early withdrawal, that may not be remembered with pride and satisfaction.

The equipping and transport of an army of such magnitude was a wonderful feat, and the conduct of the Americans over there is thrilling and profitable to recall.

It is to be hoped that the theory of incendiaryism in relation to recent destructive fires shall not be dismissed until there has been thorough investigation.

The fact is not to be denied that certain agitators preach the doctrine of destruction, and inflame the minds of weaklings with the thought that something helpful to themselves will be brought about by attacks upon natural resources and upon every visible sign of prosperity.

Manuel Quezon may be a statesman according to rules prevalent in the Philippines, but measured by ordinary standards, he is a pest.

It seems to be his ambition to undo so far as possible, the good work of the United States in the islands, and to teach the natives that gratitude is a trait wholly without virtue.

Being marooned in the Arctic is a less dreary experience than it was before the day of the radio. Explorers may be frozen into an ice pack, ten months from possible release, and daily listen to concerts, lectures and jazz.

Nevertheless a trip to the Arctic still offers more peril than pleasure.

That was an unusual case in Chicago, of the sedate spinster of fifty, regularly employed, who suddenly joined a bevy of cabaret hounds. She had to steal in order to keep up her end, but this she did freely and joyously until discovered. Her shortage was about $9000, but she didn't seem to care. She said she had had a good time even if she drank too much. She cost her $6.

It is not often that a woman of her type kicks over the traces in any spectacular fashion. The "old maid" of yesterday never would have done it. This is a new era, a fresh moral cut, and there are no old maids now.

Ten years have been added to expectancy of life in the last twenty years, says the president of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Probably this is correct. Strangely enough it applies to persons guilty of a capital offense in this state.

The film director charged with a brutal attack upon a girl has been found guilty. This is the chap who on the day of trial telephoned to two other girls, asking if they loved him, and inviting them to come to the courtroom.

It is to be hoped that in fixing sentence the judge will have the telephone incident in mind. That ought to add a year or two.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

STRENUOUS SINCERITY

Bobby was weeping into his cereal bowl. He didn't want to eat this morning. He wanted to go out on the porch and play with the new kitten.

"Eat it right up," said his mother firmly. "It's good for you and besides you can't start playing until your breakfast is eaten, so you needn't think it."

"Come along, Bobs," said his young Auntie. "There's a big blue butterfly down in the bottom of the bowl and he can't see out until you eat him out. Hurry up and let him! It's a lovely day and he wants to see it."

Hesitatingly Bobby took up his spoon and peckingly lifted a bit of the cereal.

"That's the boy. Now he's flapping a wing. Hurry up and let him get out." Bobby began to smile and soon ate his way to the butterfly on the bottom of the bowl.

"He can see out now, Aunt Millie."

"He surely can, and he sees a good little boy that ate up all the cereal off him so he could look out at the sky. He thinks you're a pretty nice fellow, I tell you."

Bobby threw out his chest and went out to the kitten. "Millie," said his mother gravely. "I know you meant it all right, but I wish you would not tell him such things. I always tell him the truth. He doesn't like to eat his cereal, and I just tell him it's good for him and he must eat it. I never deceive him."

"It's not deceiving him," gasped Millie. "It's just helping him put a pleasant face on a disagreeable job, and it's play." He knows that. He must play that disagreeable things are not as bad as they look or else how'll he ever get the courage to face them?"

"I'm always sincere with him," said his mother firmly. "He must learn to do his duty and telling him fairy tales and smoothing hard things over for him won't teach him to do that."

"Poor thing!" said Aunt Millie.

Telling the children truth is a matter of nice adjustment. One can tell only such fragments of truth as one knows. One isn't always so sure of them at that. And as for telling truth to children one can tell only what they have the power to grasp.

A two-year-old child has no sense of duty and no judgment for truth. If I told a child that in the bottom of his bowl there lay a dancing butterfly that could never get out unless he ate the cereal I would be telling the truth, as I knew it, because I believed health lay in the bottom of that bowl, and that he was on his way to it when he ate the food it contained.

Bobby would follow me better that way. Duty he knows nothing of, yet. Fairies are his own!

COUNCIL FAVORS VERDUGO ROAD REPAIR

Petitions, Resolutions and Ordinances Are Acted Upon

The Glendale city council decided Thursday night to pay special attention to the repair of Verdugo road between the central part of this city and Montrose. This action was taken as a result of a communication from the Montrose chamber of commerce, which stated that the Verdugo road is in bad shape and the residents of that northern section would appreciate it steps to improve would be taken at once.

The petition for the establishment of a grocery store on the Pacific Avenue school was, on motion of Councilman Davis, denied. One of the reasons for the school buying the lot on which the grocery stood, said Mr. Adams of 135 South Pacific, was to get rid of the grocery. Now the owner wants a permit to establish a store on the next lot south. A protest against this store being established was received from the Parent-Teacher association of the Pacific Avenue school.

J. K. Sands of 111 North Maryland, made application for the position of deputy plumbing inspector made vacant by the death of Clarence Edwards, who was burned to death in the recent fire. This was referred to the building inspector. Dan Hunsberger is filling the position temporarily.

One thousand dollars was appropriated, on motion of Councilman Kimlin, from the unappropriated reserve fund, to the engineering department.

The following transfers were also made from the unappropriated reserve: To the building fund, $675; to the police fund, in two amounts, $1400, to pay for two automobiles.

On motion of Councilman Kimlin the building inspector was authorized to see that grease traps were built in connection with all restaurants and that they are kept in order.

On motion of Councilman Davis the name of Cleveland road was ordered changed to Grand View and that of Matilija drive to Monterey.

Mrs. E. D. Jewell was granted a permit to care for one adult at 1746 Camulos avenue, and Mrs. May Schwendener was granted a permit to care for two children at 463 Patterson avenue.

Peter L. Ferry was awarded the contract for the improvement of certain alleys in the city.

The hearing of the petition to set a certain part of Central aside as a commercial district was set for November 1.

The hearing of the opening and widening of Grayford avenue was postponed for two weeks.

Proceedings for the improvement of Sinclair avenue were ordered started.

The petition for the improvement of Glorietta avenue from Canada to Hermosita, was returned to the petitioners for more names.

The following ordinances were adopted:

An ordinance ordering the opening and widening of Park avenue.

An ordinance ordering the opening and widening of Harvard street.

An ordinance establishing a first class residential district on Pioneer drive.

An amendment to the building ordinance permitting semi-fire proof material to be used in the fire zone.

An ordinance establishing a commercial district at Palmer and Adams.

A resolution for the improvement of Monterey road and Adams street was adopted.

An ordinance ordering the opening and widening of Eighth street was offered.

An ordinance establishing a commercial district on Fourth street was offered.

'BANANAS' SETS THE PACE FOR NUT SONGS

Moron Ditty Makes Fortune for Its Composers

In "Little Old New York" that mysteriously successful lyric, "Yes, We Have No Bananas" continues to reign as the leading song hit as it to prove the recent declaration of a distinguished pessimist that we are a nation of morons. But there are others for it is continuing its triumphal course across the sea in Great Britain to the discomfiture of some of the Americans upon whom it is thrust as a special treat from home. The authors, Messrs. Cohn and Silver, for whom it has made a fortune, are members of an orchestra which plays in a New York suburb, and are said to have received their inspiration from the lingo of a fruit selling Italian. They tried it on the dog first, otherwise the suburb. It went big. The publisher to whom it was offered, fell for it, and so did the multitude. It has had many imitators in what are known as "nut songs," the most popular of which is "Barney Google," the name derived from one of the well known characters in the "funny sheet" that is syndicated all over the United States. Barney has been interpreted in terms of the fox trot and it seems to fit and endear this popular "funny" to his many friends. This is said to be the next best seller to "Bananas."

Editorials by the People

Editor Glendale Press:

Dear Sir,—I would like a wee bit of space in your paper calling attention to your readers about "Glendale—The City Beautiful." It sounds nice on paper, but let's take a look around town.

We are driving along West Broadway—a beautiful avenue. We dismount from our flivver and take to the sidewalks, that is, we try to. By forcing the 6-foot weeds aside we finally find what last spring was a nice wide walk turned into a weed-covered jungle.

Even the "For Sale" signs are out of sight on some of the lots, and that is about the only redeeming feature. Now it seems to the writer, and perhaps to others, that these lots would be far easier to sell if the weeds were cleared off. If the city of Glendale has no weed-clearing ordinance then it's time they put one over. Not only are the weeds unsightly, they are a fire menace.

The district above mentioned is only one in hundreds in our city. These vacant lots are held for speculative purposes and would look more enticing to prospective buyers if kept in presentable condition—just like merchandise. If the city has no power in the matter, the realty board should take action.

Trusting this letter will be accepted in the spirit of the writer's intention—to help make Glendale "The City Beautiful."

Respectfully yours,

EMIL E. STEINER,
680 West Broadway.

Glendale, Oct. 18.

Editor Glendale Daily Press:

The theory of evolution which is receiving so much attention nowadays in the secular press, church papers and on the platform, is not a new subject. About 25 years ago Sam P. Jones, the great evangelist, was asked for his views on evolution. Said he, "I believe in the theory inverted." Instead of men coming from monkeys some men seem to be evolving backwards into monkeys. If I may be privileged I would like to say through your columns that in our phenomenal growth and progress in Glendale there is a danger that some of our evolutions may be backward instead of forward. For example, in bold type and on a conspicuous page of yesterday's Press was a graphic 2-column account of a slug-ging match. Hundreds of fans were highly pleased to see the winner "by a murderous left hook send his opponent to the floor with a resounding crash, where he lay for some minutes before regaining consciousness." Witnessing such scenes cannot but be degrading to anyone and especially the young men and boys who no doubt were present. Tonight's Press gives notice that two women sluggers will be the attraction next week. And all under the name of athletics.

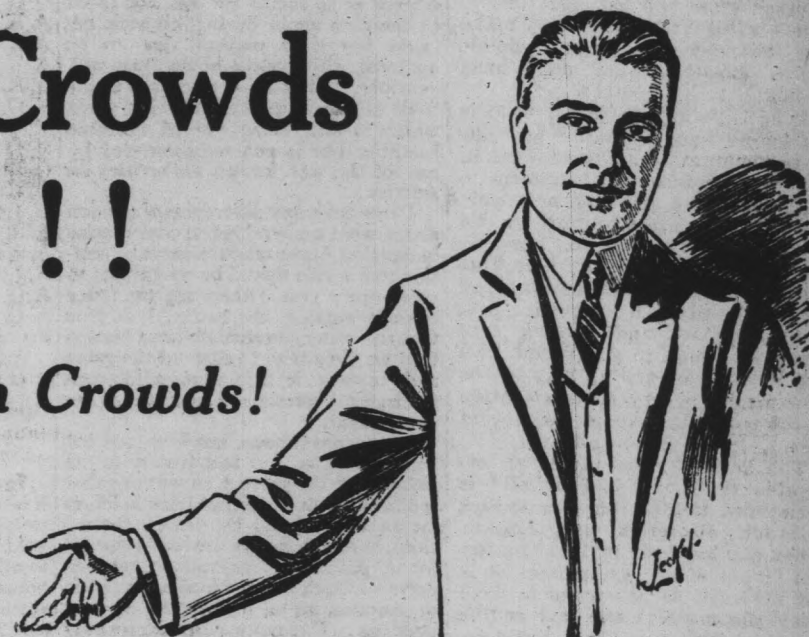

This may be a case of evolution but from the standpoint of real worth and value it is of the backward type, and in no way advances Glendale's interests.

How Dinner Out May Avoid All Pitfalls

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

An article in a current magazine contains hints for the host and hostess who contemplate giving a dinner which are fairly philanthropic in their directions as to how to behave under given circumstances, as for instance, when guests are late and a cheerful conversation must be maintained with the early birds regardless of any agonizing anxieties concerning the spilling of dinner or the possible erratic actions of maids or butlers. So many contingencies are covered it is impossible to refer to them all, but it is hard to refrain from paraphrasing a few suggestions for the guest inserted at the last minute by the kind instructor. For instance, it is indicated that the late guest should bestow his hat and coat in the place indicated by the servant who admits him, and presumably, not wear them to the tables. When accompanied by a lady who also, it is assumed, is told where to put her things, he must wait for her to join him and not rush to the dining room and get half way through his soup course before she has had time to finish with her Hy stick and make her entrance. In irreproachable guise. Also he must make brief apologies to his hostess.

If he is polite he will eat what is set before him, no matter how distasteful, or at least "toy" with it. It is considered very bad form to refuse a course and then nervously fondle your plate while others are trying to enjoy what you have rejected. Also, he will not help himself too liberally to dishes that may be passed to him without first counting noses and making sure there is enough to go around. No matter how hungry he may be, he is expected to pay some attention to other guests, but not by way of side kicks or "holding hands."

The getting away after "an enjoyable time was had by all" is sometimes ticklish business which calls for discretion and finesse. When one has been invited to a formal dinner at say ten o'clock; it is not regarded as courteous to dash away the moment the last course has been removed. One should remain at least until the cigars have been passed and even longer, if there is any prospect of bootlegging. It is generally the proper thing to pass the buck to the lady who in her turn should not selfishly drag away her escort when he is telling his pet story and at his best. Again, some consideration should be had for the host and hostess who have had to manufacture conversation and listen to ancient jokes and who are probably tired enough to leave the table. The tactful guest will when it is the psychological moment to make his get away and will be ready with a graceful little speech about the delightful evening he has spent regardless of facts. It will not be necessary to kiss his hostess good night.

EYEBROWS ARE AGAIN NORMAL

The painfully tweezed eyebrow is no longer in favor, says a beauty authority. The French consider that it hardens the expression, and they simply keep a nice clear space between the brows but leave the natural arch undisturbed. They usually crayon the brows a little and extend them towards the temples so as to give character to the face.

FORECASTS

Here are words of weight from one of the big shoe men: "Four buttons. Arctics are going to be worn as much as ever. Color in shoes is here to stay but in subdued shades. Women will never go back to the all black shoe. Brown will be the favorite color this season and this takes in the entire range from the darkest shades to the lightest ecru." Broadcloth is returning to favor in a measure for elegant dresses

ARTICLE No. 1

The so-called card conventions are the well recognized rules of the game that are accepted and played everywhere. It is unfortunate that card conventions are sometimes localized, springing up in certain localities without being known or followed elsewhere. As a result, when a player leaves the old home town, he either has to explain his system or subject himself to criticism. "We don't play that way in our home town," is no longer accepted as a good alibi. The conventions, necessary to a good partnership game, are now well agreed upon and there is no excuse for the fancy local bids and plays. This point was well brought out not long ago when a visitor at one of the New York clubs started the other players by asking if they understood the "club convention." He then explained in detail that if he bid a club it meant that he might or might not have the club suit, but that he did have a good all around hand. In spite of this explanation his partners did not get the idea and the results were not satisfactory either to himself or to them. He was not asked to the club again during his visit because few card players care to be annoyed with purely home-town conventions. This club convention is the basis of the so-called invitation game which is still being played in some localities but is not recommended by any of the well known authorities on Auction.

There are many differences of opinion about what are established conventions in Auction. Some take the extreme position that a rule should be established to cover every case. Others say the fewer the conventions, the better. It is true that too many conventions are a burden because they tend to slow up the game and convert it into a scientific and mechanical procedure, instead of an amusement.

Some conventions, however, are not only necessary, but add greatly to the pleasure of the game. Conventions that require certain numerical trick holdings for an original bid by dealer, second, third, or fourth hands, are indispensable for a proper understanding between partners. Such conventions are as basic to Auction as a foundation is to a building. The more meaning and information they convey, the greater pleasure there is to those who can understand and make the proper use of them. A table of card values and the requirements for sound information are unquestionably necessary conventions.

In the play of the hand, too, there are conventions which add to the interest of the game; such as tables of leads, the echo, the rule of eleven. Fortunately, however, it is not only impossible but also inadvisable, to find a rule to fit every case. Once Auction is reduced to an exact science, it will cease to be a game and therefore will lose the popularity that it now enjoys. Conventions are what every player should know but not necessarily what every player must do. Occasions arise every now and then where it is much better to depart from the convention or rule, than to follow it. These conventions and the basic principles of Auction are covered in a previous series of articles for beginners which can be supplied to readers of this paper for 10 cents. (Send stamps to Hoyle, Jr., McMillan opposite Iowa St., Cincinnati, Ohio.)

The present series of articles, of which this is the first, is written especially for Auction players who want to improve their game. For their aid we reprint here a table of original leads which is part of every expert's equipment.

Opening Leads at a Trump Bid

If Partner has not Bid

If partner has bid, it generally is preferable to open his suit unless holding an Ace King combination yourself. In opening partner's suit, lead the fourth best of four or two honors, unless holding the Ace or two more in sequence. If so, lead the Ace or the higher of the honors. If holding three or less of partner's suit, lead the highest card.

The following table of leads against a declared trump is only to guide the player to figure out his best lead. No table of leads can cover every hand that is dealt. Also note that the leads suggested are only to be followed when partner has not bid.

From all other combinations. Fourth best (x represents a small card.)

Opening Leads against a No Trump Bid

If Partner has not Bid

In case your partner has made a bid it is usually better to open his suit than to take a chance with your own. If you hold four or more of his suit, lead fourth best; if you hold three to as honor, lead the lowest card; if you hold three small cards, lead the highest card; if you hold two to an honor, lead the honor; if you hold two small cards, lead the higher card. With only a singleton of your partner's suit, it sometimes is better to open your own suit. No definite rule can be set down. The bidding should give fair indication of the strength of partner's suit.

Rochester Doctor Achieves Remarkable Success With New Prescription for Piles

Rochester, N. Y. — For years it has been known that many so-called remedies for the relief or cure of Hemorrhoids or Piles were simply palliative and gave only temporary relief while surgical operations often adopted as a last resort never removed the cause but simply the formation.

It has remained for a well-known doctor of this city to find the real remedy. Years of patient, painstaking effort on his part has resulted in a prescription that will actually heal piles and absorb them never to return.

No man or woman need suffer an other hour from any pain, soreness or distress arising from Hemorrhoids or Piles now that this wonderful prescription known as MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES can be obtained for a moderate price at any first-class drug store on the money back if dissatisfied plan.

You'll be amazed to see how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in an hour; even in cases of long standing with profuse bleeding, really wonderful results have been accomplished.

Remember the name, MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES, and be sure to follow the simple directions that come in each box.—Adv.

HOW A DOUBLE CHIN CAN BE CURED

Philanthropist Who Got Rid of One Passes on the Secret

A real philanthropist was the woman who cured herself of a very undesirable double chin and was willing to share her good fortune with others. Her method as described in a current magazine, follows:

"We all know how unsightly a double chin is, and this is how I cured mine and several friends proved it a success.

"With the head thrown back, open the mouth wide and bring it shut again as though chewing something. Strain the muscles in the chin and neck as much as possible and repeat several times a day for several weeks. I always practise it at night while doing my regular exercises and it keeps the cords of the neck in good condition and from getting stiff or sore when I have a cold.

"Of course over-eating and too much sweets often cause a double chin, so look to that cause too, while practising the exercise."

HAIR SHOULD BE WELL FED

Would you have beautiful hair? If you say "yes," as of course you will, whether you be man or woman, you must see first that it is well fed, and second that it is not diminished by nervous tension. Calcium fluoride is a mineral food element a deficiency of which in the diet is indicated by scalp diseases. It is said to have much to do with the sheen and gloss of the hair. Its absence in the system is also indicated by blueness of the fingernails. The main vegetable source of calcium is the bran of whole grains. Whole-wheat bran contains five per cent of calcium. White flour has one-half of one per cent calcium. Milk has one half per cent.

TEETH NEED PLENTY OF EXERCISE

Here's some tooth advice from a specialist:

"Dry hard toast will pay you for its use in much better and longer lasting teeth. Vegetables, too, are essential because they give the teeth something to work on and they supply the organic salts that keep the enamel in better condition to withstand decay. Harder, coarser foods supply the teeth and the tissues of the gums with a source of exercise and also help to keep the surface of the enamel polished because of the mechanical action against its surfaces."

PLAIN RUGS IN HIGH FAVOR

It is true that a plain rug shows footprints very readily, some colors being more troublesome in this respect than others. For rooms subject to constant use it may be better to choose rugs that have patterns. This does not mean pattern in conspicuous contrast but just enough to be faintly evident, says an exchange.

Aside from this single objection, plain rugs are popular in all domestic makes, for they are excellent background for furnishings, and increase the size of small rooms. It has been stated that the color and pattern of Orientals and their imitations are hard to combine with other furnishings. This is avoided by the use of a plain rug which harmonizes with upholstery and drapery, affording a restful background. Floor coverings should not be vivid, for when rugs are too bright they do not hold their place as foundation. The bright parts seem to hit the eye, making restless spottiness the result.

'SLACKING' DANGEROUS BUSINESS

Reacts on Saleswomen in Spite of Appearances

"There are saleswomen slackers or shirkers galore. Of course in the stores where the worker's income depends upon the volume of sales, the dyed-in-the-wool shirker will manage to pile up a good volume of sales merely as a matter of self preservation; but she may do this and still be a shirker by failing to keep her stock in the condition that it should be kept in, and by looking at today alone in her treatment and general handling of customers, selecting only such customers as she feels pretty sure will buy and buy quickly, instead of building for the future by exercising some real selling ability, which means not only a sale at the time, if possible, but a display of courtesy, patience and genuine interest in the customer which anchors this customer to the store for life," says Polly Pen.

"It is always comparatively easy, in the average department, for a saleswoman to dodge customers she does not really want to wait on and shunt this task onto some other saleswoman, and the shirker does this every time she has a chance.

The shirker may not be an intentional shirker, as a matter of fact. She may be merely careless and slipshod in her work. But whatever the reason, shirking is a dangerous business, because it is hopelessly destructive to real character, and genuine, permanent success is built primarily on character."

LET THE LOWER LIGHTS' BE BURNING

Shaded Illumination as a Setting for Beauty

There is no discounting the illusions and allurements of softly shaded lights as a setting for beauty, and in these days of careful calculation the problem is not left to chance but has been carefully worked out as in the following paragraphs taken from an article in a beauty magazine:

"Lower lights are more becoming than high ones. Inverted lights do not cast shadows. This, sometimes, is an advantage as an aid to beauty. But uncovered ceiling lights are never becoming. If you can do away with ceiling lights altogether, you have taken one big step, as far as beauty is concerned. Wall lights are far more becoming. Floor and table lights are the most becoming of all.

"Do not have too many lights at night. Have these lights softly shaded. Have them placed conveniently for reading or sewing. Use them sparingly for general illuminating.

"In the dining room, if you wish to look your best, use candles. There is nothing so lovely, so romantic or so becoming as candlelight. But do not use shades, here. The natural flicker of the candle is too lovely to hide. Do not have too many. From two to eight, according to the size of your table, is all you can possibly need. Candle-light is the best possible aid to beauty."

Passing of Long Corset

"An exploited theory as regards the correct corseting of the large woman is the matter of length," says a corsetier of note. "Who does not remember, but a few years ago, when the extremely long corset made its debut, and every woman whether she was four feet tall or six feet, encased herself in the longest corset she could lay her hands on? That the corset, when on the body, reached the knees so that normal walking or sitting was not possible, and was therefore, unsuited to everybody, did not immediately fasten itself on the feminine mind. Now length is prescribed only in relation to actual measurements, with the result that women no longer stand because they cannot sit!"

Touche of Distinction

A house may be small and simple and yet have distinctive openings that cost no more than for the ordinary. The arched door lends contrast and beauty at no extra cost. Shades of the purest white are recommended for this type of home, although old rose tints may sometimes be appropriately used.

TREND OF FASHION

By HELEN MERRILL EMERY

Embroidered Materials Hold Their Own in Winter Modes.

So great was the vogue attained by embroidered materials in the season just past that one would have been justified in thinking that so far as fashion was concerned they were definitely done for. On the contrary they have never been more firmly established in favor but one finds a greater mastery of design, a greater subtlety in the use of color and infinitely more distinction in the models introduced for the winter season.

Often there is a mingling of many shades but the effect is never crude and many of the most distinctive costumes reveal a skillful use of metal tones. One of the most successful models of the year is a straight slim coat of black velvet collared with chinilla and entirely covered from neck to hem with a most exquisite design done in silver and gun-metal thread. Self-toned embroidery is rather extensively employed and when this is done the pattern comes in for even more attention. In the wrap illustrated the steel grey of the soft woollen fabric serves as a background to bring out the design done in silk of a slightly deeper shade. In line it shows its Oriental inspiration. The cut of the sleeves and long collar have been suggested by a Japanese kimono.

Grey fox adds to its aspect of luxury.

SOME PERTINENT HINTS FOR HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

Unity Should Be Maintained and Simplicity

While any material, rightly handled, may be used effectively in any room, it is imperative that it shall conform to other furnishings in simplicity or richness. It is further essential that curtains repeat the colors of other room furnishings, especially upholstery and floor covering, lest the windows give isolated spots of color not related to the rest of the room.

In the matter of pattern, if the walls and floors are plain, it is desirable to use pattern in the draperies. When walls and floor both are patterned, the draperies should be plain.

The chief color in the rug should be repeated elsewhere in the room in draperies, in cushions, lampshades or other likely places so that unity may be obtained. Drapery and upholstery fabrics should yield to the rug because they are more perishable fabrics whose mission is one of beauty rather than durability.

Where windows of extreme width must be shaded the monotony of the wide expanse can be relieved by the use of a scalloped fringe edge. The fringe looks equally well on the narrow windows. It must be on all windows that are prominently exposed, to give uniformity.

WOMEN READY TO HELP DISABLED WAR VETERANS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 19.—Thousands of girls and women throughout the United States will take an active part in the coming "National Forget-Me-Not Day" of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, according to National Adjutant Raymond A. Lasance.

The splendid success of last year's "National Forget-Me-Not Day" drive will be overshadowed this year, Mr. Lasance says, when the campaign will be opened Saturday, November 10, in every city and town in the United States. Prominent national, state and city officials have already guaranteed their support and active participation in the disabled veterans' great "Day," when public-spirited citizens all over the United States will purchase the little paper and cloth flowers.

Proceeds of National "Forget-Me-Not Day" will be used for national legislative and welfare work; relief and educational measures in the interests of the world war's maimed and disabled American veterans, and general progressive activities in the national work of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

The Glendale lightweights took things easy in the first half of their tilt with South Pasadena on the local field yesterday afternoon and then opened up wide in the second session, pushing over three touchdowns for an 18 to 0 victory. La Franchi, quarterback for the home team, made two of the Glendale scores, while McCallister, right halfback, accounted for the other.

Dante La Franchi of Glendale made a spectacular play when he received a flying pass from the other side and made a 65 yard open field run. Lyle McCallister then succeeded in bucking the ball over the line. He, too, received a pass in the last two minutes of the game and succeeded in making a touchdown. Neil Schuler, fullback, was almost seriously injured, when hit in the head during the last quarter. He was unconscious for fifteen minutes.

Coach Butterfield feels very optimistic concerning the season for Glendale in the Central League, and the prospects of grabbing the pennant seem bright.

BRANCHERS MEET LOYOLA SQUAD TOMORROW

Cubs to Play Catholics in Last Practice
Combat

Coach Jimmy Cline's Southern Branch football team meets Loyola College at Moore Field, Vermont avenue tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. There will be a preliminary tilt, the Cub frosh tackling Santa Ana Junior College at 1:15 o'clock.

The clash between Loyola and the little bears will be the first of the season to reveal the contrasting systems of the U. S. C. and California, as Coach Hess, former U. S. C. line coach, is using U. S. C. methods, while Jimmie Cline of the Blue and Gold works along the lines of Andy Smith.

Cline plans to start practically the same men as he did last week. Breesee and Bishop ends, Gardner and Westcott tackles, Molrine and Hollingsworth guards, and Collins center, will have one more chance to demonstrate that they are capable of holding a line. Parisi will start at quarter, Jones and Haralson at halves and Peak at full.

The game with Loyola will be the last practice affair of the season for the Cubs and should put them in fine fettle for the first big conference game with the Whittier team the following week. Rated previously as one of the weakest teams, Whittier now takes her place in the first division by virtue of her 8-to-0 win over Caltech. This rather upsets the calculations of the coaches at U. S. C. B. as training this year has been pointed toward the latter part of the season when Caltech and Occidental are scheduled.

the world train next spring at Los Angeles. A formal written proposition to this effect was laid before Business Manager Ed Barrow by George A. Putnam, secretary of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, and Mr. Putnam followed this Wednesday with a verbal barrage. But at the end of it all Barrow said "Nay" in a firm and unshakable voice.

Mr. Putnam, in addition to being a baseball official, is one of the world's champion boosters on the Pacific Coast.

Heard to this eloquent oratory the hard-hearted Yankees had only one answer: "Too far to go with a ball team, and the traveling too heavy."

WORK TO BEGIN THIS WEEK ON BASEBALL PARK

Work will commence on Glendale's new baseball structure this week, and will be rushed through so that the second or third round Triple A schedule can be played on the home field of the fastest growing town in America. Mike Donlin, famous for his great baseball feats with the New York Giants, when the latter were looking upon as the most formidable outfit in the big show, will be at the helm of the Glendale crew. Like Josh Clarke, veteran leader of the Shell Oil team, Donlin will cavort around the outer garden, and no doubt prove to the satisfaction of the Glendale following that he can still sock the old agate with a vengeance.

With a half a dozen big time ball orchards being available for use in the Triple A, this circuit not only figures to give the winning patrons the fastest brand of ball ever displayed here, but will prove that the semi-pros can put over a money making ball loop with success.

PAPYRUS SHOWS BRILLIANT WORKOUT

May Substitute My Own as American Entry in Place of Zev

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—An exceptionally brilliant workout by Papyrus, with Steve Donoghue up in the English derby winner's final speed test, and orders for the shipment here of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson's My Own, ready to substitute for Zev in an emergency, were developments that held the center of interest last night in the $100,000 international turf classic to be run next Saturday at Belmont Park.

The Jockey club's international race committee late today decided to have My Own here as a precautionary measure. It was announced by Maj. August Belmont, committee chairman, who denied that any eleven-hour shift in the horse which will carry American colors was contemplated. Coming on top of criticism of Zev's showing in the workout for the match race, however, the Jockey club's step had been interpreted in some quarters as indicating the possible withdrawal of the Rancocas colt.

Budd and end, Huggins at quarterback and Mulroney featured with brilliant work for Covina. With four touchdowns tucked away, Coach Haver gave the substitutes a chance to work in the second half. Mulroney contributed three touchdowns and Samuels one. In each case Huggins kicked goal.

SPORT-O-GRAMS

By FRANCIS WILKERSON READ

STANFORD HAS A SLIGHT EDGE

Two fast grid battles are on deck for Southern California tomorrow. Occidental and Stanford will meet at the Los Angeles Coliseum, while Pomona and Caltech will play at the Pasadena Stadium. Both games look like they will be the real stuff. Stanford and Occidental are playing an exhibition game, not scheduled for either conference, and therefore the result will be of no consequence as far as the standings of the two teams go. However, the game will serve to indicate the relative strength of the two teams. Occidental has played but one game, smothering the San Diego Teachers under a 33 to 0 score, while Stanford defeated Nevada and Santa Clara in two successive weeks. On the surface, Stanford appears slightly stronger than the Tigers, but just what will happen when the two teams meet on the field cannot be predicted. It is unfortunate that the Occidental team no longer meets U. S. C. for if the Tigers played the Trojans there would be some direct method of comparison between U. S. C. and Stanford.

Pomona and Caltech will furnish the other affair. Although the Engineers lost to Whittier last week they look a good deal stronger than Pomona, and should clean up on the Sagehens. However, nothing is certain in football, and Pomona may upset the dope just as well as not. This game will be the first Southern California Conference struggle played by the Sagehens this season, and will also be the only conference game to be played this week. With this contest every team in the conference except the Southern Branch will have started. The Cubs will play their first game against the fast Whittier outfit on Moore Field Saturday of next week.

PACIFIC COAST CONFERENCE OPENS

Up north the Pacific Coast Conference will open wide tomorrow. U. S. C. and Washington will mix at Seattle, while California will take on the Oregon Aggies at Berkeley. Both games will be good, but the most interesting will be the Trojan-Huskie mixup. It is generally admitted that California looks too strong for the Aggies and will outclass them, although this may prove wrong when the two teams meet on the field of combat.

About the U. S. C.-Washington game, however, there is room for plenty of speculation. The Trojans have every promise of one of the strongest teams in the conference. In fact, they are considered as the only team that stands any kind of a show against the California Bears. They have defeated Caltech, Pomona and Nevada to date. The first two of these games were rather disappointing to the general public, for Gloomy Gus Henderson did not allow his men to open up and show the strength they possessed. In the Nevada game the Trojans broke loose and showed a portion of their stuff. They demonstrated that they have every requisite for a potential championship team.

The University of Washington has an exceptionally strong eleven this year. That is known for a fact. The Huskies will give U. S. C. a real battle, and hope to win. Henderson, however, has thrown aside his customary cloak of gloom and says that they shall not.

COVINE MIDGETS WIN GAME FROM MONROVIA BABES

COVINA, Oct. 19.—The lightweight eleven of Covina high school yesterday smothered the Monrovia lightweights in the opening round of play in the Central League. The score was 28 to 0.

Early in the first period the superiority of the Covina team was evidenced. It resolved itself into a question of just how big the score would be.

Budd and end, Huggins at quarterback and Mulroney featured with brilliant work for Covina. With four touchdowns tucked away, Coach Haver gave the substitutes a chance to work in the second half. Mulroney contributed three touchdowns and Samuels one. In each case Huggins kicked goal.

NOTRE DAME WILL PROBABLY ACCEPT INVITATION HERE

[By Associated Press]

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 19.—Although athletic officials at the University of Notre Dame have not yet received an invitation to send the football team to Los Angeles, for a game in the Coliseum there on Christmas Day with some western eleven, it was indicated today that consideration would be given to such a proposition.

The Los Angeles Community Development association is understood to be sponsoring the plan for an inter-sectional contest with Notre Dame representing the Middle West.

Pasadena Stadium Scene of Only Conference Grid Struggle

Caltech and Pomona will supply the only football game on the Southern California conference schedule tomorrow. They will meet at the Pasadena stadium in what promises to be a real red hot pigskin game. Both teams will show all they have in order to win.

In spite of their last week to Whittier, the Caltech Engineers are favored to win over the Sagehens. Last year Pomona put over 146 to 6 victory in the Caltech game, but conditions have changed greatly since then. Pomona has lost most of her stars, while Caltech has a ripping good team.

Defeated by the Whittier Poets last week, the Technicians are expected to come back mad enough to tear any machine down. The Engineers failed to follow the breaks last Saturday and fumbled the ball a great deal. This was the reason for their defeat. They made fifteen first down from scrimmage, while their conquerors made but one. It seems that in the heat of play they could not hang on to the oval and every time they fumbled it some Quaker player would pick it up and gallop down the field or kick it out of danger.

Stanton has a real football team in spite of the rather disappointing showing his men made Saturday, and Coach Nixon of Pomona would rather beat Pomona than play the New Year's game. He was once a Pomona coach and likes to show the Blue and White that he has the old light in his men at Caltech.

With three of their first string men on the sick list, the Sagehens' outlook is not very bright. It was not overly bright anyway, but now it looks like a rather gloomy horizon. Clark is out with tonsillitis, Merritt is still having trouble with his broken nose, while Bert hurt his ankle in scrimmage last week. Nixon will have to fight hard with his available material, and the whole world knows that above all Dixon is a fighter.

A small boy is firmly convinced that every time he earns a reward some other boy gets it.

OXY TIGERS ARE ALL PRIMED FOR STANFORD GAME

Orange and Black Team
Takes on Cardinals
Tomorrow

By Lester Graftons

Tomorrow the Occidental Tigers will take on Stanford at the Los Angeles Coliseum. Both teams are of a proved quality and Southland fans will have an opportunity to see two of the most picturesque teams in the state. Stanford, with a world wide reputation for the class of college men and women it puts out and Occidental with its Princeton of the West traditions. Occidental has always been a producer of good teams, and Coach Joe Pipal hopes to show the West that he still can produce winning teams. Back in 1916 the Tigers whipped the Golden Bears and the Bears have not been scored on since 1919. The team is rather light but extremely fast. In fact, it is regarded as one of the fastest teams in the country. With Argue, captain of last year's track team on one end, and who is a sprinter of national reputation, and Captain Spangler on the other, also a sprinter, well known on the track, the Tigers figure on making it extremely uncomfortable for the Cards. With Whittier pulling off the unexpected over Caltech last Saturday the Orange and Black Institution figures to do the same over Stanford.

Pipal has been working his charges twice a day so as to be sure of his men not pulling off any breaks. While Oxy figures on giving the Cards the hardest fight they have had in years, the Coach is more or less worried, due to the fact that Ebers, punter, was in an automobile accident the other day, and Snoddy, 200 pound back has been called home on account of a death in the family. Pipal has coached all over the world, and is listed among the best 35 coaches in the country. An elderly fellow with gray hair but full of spirit and exuberance, which would cause one to believe him only twenty-five. Most of his time has been spent this year in showing Argue and Spangler how to work together on the pass proposition, and from the showing in practice last week, the Stanford Cardinals will be up a tree unless they break this pair.

Oxy's hopes are centered on these two young men, and with giant Dave Riderhoff, former L. A. High gridiron star, hitting the line hard and low, the Tigers figure on growing to the world at large that they have a football team which will use speed and perfect team work combined.

From the looks of things, the best game the Coliseum has seen will be settled tomorrow at 2:30. The Bakersfield High versus the Oxy Frosh will put on the preliminary game at one o'clock.

Little Billie was paralyzed for a second or two; then he ran after Svengali, and caught him just at the top of the marble stairs, and kicked him, and knocked off his hat, and made him drop all his letters. Svengali turned round and struck him over the mouth and made it bleed, and Little Billie hit out like a fury, but with no effect: he couldn't reach high enough, for Svengali was well over six feet.

There was a crowd round them in a minute, including the beautiful old man in the court suit and gold chain, who called out:

"Vite! vite! un commissaire de police!"—a cry that was echoed all over the place.

Taffy saw the row, and shouted, "Bravo, little uni!" and, jumping up from his table, jostled his way through the crowd; and Little Billie, bleeding and gasping and perspiring and stammering, said:

"He spat in my face, Taffy—damn him! I'd never even spoken to him—not a word, I swear!"

Svengali had not reckoned on Taffy's being there; he recognized him at once, and turned white.

Taffy, who had dog-skin gloves on, put out his right hand, and deftly seized Svengali's nose between his fore and middle fingers and nearly pulled it off, and swung his head two or three times backward and forward by it, and then from side to side, Svengali holding on to his wrist; and then, letting him go, gave him a sounding open-handed smack on his right cheek—and a smack on the face from Taffy (even in play) was no joke, I'm told; it made one smell brimstone, and see and hear things that didn't exist.

Svengali gasped worse than Little Billie, and couldn't speak for a while. Then he said,

"Lache—grand lache! che tous enterrai mes temoines!"

"At your orders!" said Taffy, in beautiful French, and drew out his card-case and gave him his card in quite the orthodox French manner, adding: "I shall be here till tomorrow at twelve—but that is my London address, in case I don't hear from you before I leave. I'm sorry, but you really mustn't spit, you know—it's not done. I will come to you whenever you send for me—even if I have to come from the end of the world."

"Tres bien! tres bien!" said a military-looking old gentleman close by, who gave Taffy his card, in case he might be of any service—and who seemed quite delighted at the row—and indeed it was really pleasant to note with what a smooth, flowing, rhythmical spontaneity the good Taffy could always improvise these swift little acts of summary retributive justice: no hurry or scurry or flurry whatever—not an inharmonious gesture, not an infelicitous line—the very poetry of violence, and its only excuse!

Whatever it was worth, this was Taffy's special gift, and it never failed him at a pinch.

When the commissaire de police arrived, all was over. Svengali had gone away in a cab, and Taffy put himself at the disposition of the commissaire.

They went into the post-office and discussed it all with the old military gentleman, and the two clerks who had seen the original insult. And all that was required of Taffy and his friends for the present was "their names, surnames, titles, qualities, age, address, nationality, occupation," etc.

"C'est une affaire qui s'arrangera autrement, et autre part!" had said the military gentleman—monsieur le general Comte de la Tour-aux-Loups.

So it blew over quite simply; and all that day a fierce unholy joy burned in Taffy's choleric blue eye. Not, indeed, that he had any wish to injure Trilby's husband, or meant to do him any grievous bodily harm, whatever happened. But he was glad to have given Svengali a lesson in manners.

That Svengali should injure him never entered into his calculations for a moment. Besides, he didn't believe Svengali would show fight; and in this he was not mistaken.

But he had, for hours, the feel of that long, thick, shapely Hebrew nose being kneaded between his gloved knuckles, and a pleasing sense of the effectiveness of the tweak he had given it. So he went about chewing the cud of that heavenly remembrance all day, till reflection brought remorse, and he felt sorry; for he was really the mildest-mannered man that ever broke a head!

Only the sight of Little Billie's blood (which had been made to flow by such an unequal antagonist) had roused the old Adam.

No message came from Svengali to ask for the names and addresses of Taffy's seconds; so Doctor and Zouzou (not to mention Mister the general Count of the Tour-aux-Loups, as the Laird called him) were left undisturbed; and our three musketeers went back to London clean of blood, whole of limb, and heartily sick of Paris.

Little Billie stayed with his mother and sister in Devonshire till Christmas, Taffy staying at the village inn.

It was Taffy who told Mrs. Bagot about la Svengali's all but certain identity with Trilby, after Little Billie had gone to bed, tired and worn out, the night of their arrival.

"Good heavens!" said poor Mrs. Bagot. "Why, that's the new singing woman who's coming over here! There's an article about her in today's Times. It says she's a wonder, and that there's no one like her! Surely that can't be the Miss O'Ferrall I saw in Paris!"

"It seems impossible—but I'm almost certain it is—and Willy has no doubts in the matter. On the other hand, McAlister declares it isn't."

"Oh, what trouble! So that's why poor Willy looks so ill and miserable! It's all come back again. Could she sing at all then, when you knew her in Paris?"

"Not a note—her attempts at singing were quite grotesque."

"Is she still very beautiful?"

"Oh, yes; there's no doubt about that; more than ever."

"And her singing—is that so very wonderful? I remember that she had a beautiful voice in speaking."

"Wonderful! Ah, yes; I never heard or dreamed the like of it. Grisi, Alboni, Patti—not one of them to be mentioned in the same breath!"

"Good heavens! Why, she must be simply irresistible! I wonder you're not in love with her yourself. How dreadful these sirens are, wrecking the peace of families!"

"You mustn't forget that she gave way at once at a word from you, Mrs. Bagot; and she was very fond of Willy. She wasn't a siren then."

"Oh, yes—oh, yes! that's true—she behaved very well—she did her duty—I can't deny that! You must try and forgive me, Mr. Wynne—although I can't forgive her!—that dreadful illness of poor Willy's—that bitter time in Paris."

And Mrs. Bagot began to cry, and Taffy forgave. "Oh, Mr. Wynne—let us still hope that there's some mistake—that it's only somebody like her! Why, she's coming to sing in London after Christmas! My poor boy's infatuation will only increase. What shall I do?"

"Well—she's another man's wife, you see. So Willy's infatuation is bound to burn itself out as soon as he fully recognizes that important fact. Besides, she cut him dead in the Champs Elysees—and her husband and Willy had a row next day at the hotel, and culled and kicked each other—that's rather a bar to any future intimacy, I think."

"Oh, Mr. Wynne: my son cuffing and kicking a man whose wife he's in love with! Good heavens!"

"Oh, it was all right—the man had grossly insulted him—and Willy behaved like a brick, and got the best of it in the end, and nothing came of it. I saw it all."

"Oh, Mr. Wynne—and you didn't interfere?"

"Oh, yes, I interfered—everybody interfered. It was all right, I assure you. No bones were broken on either side, and there was no nonsense about calling out, or swords or pistols, and all that."

"Thank Heaven!"
In a week or two Little Billie grew more like himself again, and painted endless studies of rocks and cliffs and sea—and Taffy painted with him, and was very content. The vicar and Little Billie patched up their feud. The vicar also took an immense fancy to Taffy, whose cousin, Sir Oscar Wynne, he had known at college; and lost no opportunity of being hospitable and civil to him. And his daughter was away in Algiers.

And all "the nobility and gentry" of the neighborhood, including "the poor dear marquise" (one of whose sons was in Taffy's old regiment), were civil and hospitable also to the two painters—and Taffy got as much sport as he wanted, and became immensely popular. And they had, on the whole, a very good time till Christmas, and a very pleasant Christmas, if not an exuberantly merry one.

After Christmas Little Billie insisted on going back to London—to paint a picture for the Royal Academy; and Taffy went with him; and there was dullness in the house of Bagot—and many misgivings in the maternal heart of his mistress.

And people of all kinds, high and low, from the family at the Court to the fishermen on the little pier and their wives and children, missed the two genial painters, who were the friends of everybody, and made such beautiful sketches of their beautiful coast.

La Svengali has arrived in London. Her name is in every mouth. Her photograph is in the shop windows. She is to sing at J—'s monster concert next week. She was to have sung sooner, but it seems some hitch has occurred—a quarrel between Monsieur Svengali and his first violin, who is a very important person.

A crowd of people as usual, only bigger, is assembled in front of the windows of the Stereoscopic Company, in Regent Street, gazing at presentments of Madame Svengali in all sizes and costumes. She is very beautiful—there is no doubt of that; and the expression of her face is sweet and kind and sad, and of such a distinction that one feels her even better than her modest little coronet of golden stars. One of the photographs represents her in classical dress, with her left foot on a little stool, in something of the attitude of the Venus of Milo, except that her hands are clasped behind her back; and the foot is bare but for a Greek sandal, and so smooth and delicate and charming, and with so rhythmic a set and curl of the five slender toes (the big one slightly tip-tilted and well apart from its longer and slither and more aquiline neighbor), that this presentment of her sells quicker than all the rest.

And a little man who, with two bigger men, has just forced his way in front says to one of his friends: "Look, Sandy, look—the foot! Now have you got any doubts?"

"Oh, yes—those are Trilby's toes, sure enough!" says Sandy. And they all go in and purchase largely.

As far as I have been able to discover, the row between Svengali and his first violin had occurred at a rehearsal in Drury Lane Theatre. Svengali, it seems, had never been quite the same since the 15th of October previous, and that was the day he had got his face slapped and his nose tweaked by Taffy in Paris. He had become short-tempered and irritable, especially with his wife (if she was his wife).

He had not seen him for five years—not since the Christmas festivity in the Place St. Anatole, when they had sparred together after supper, and Svengali's nose had got in the way on this occasion, and had been made to bleed; but that was not why he hated Little Billie.

When he caught sight of him standing on the curb in the Place de la Concorde and watching the procession of "tout Paris," he knew him directly, and all his hate flared up; he cut him dead, and made his wife do the same.

Next morning he saw him again in the hotel post-office, looking small and weak and flurried, and apparently alone; and, being an Oriental Israeli Hebrew Jew, he had not been able to resist the temptation of spitting in his face, since he must not throttle him to death.

The minute he had done this he had regretted the folly of it. Little Billie had run after him, and kicked and struck him, and he had returned the blow and drawn blood; and then, suddenly and quite unexpectedly, had come upon the scene that apparition so loathed and dreaded of old—the pig-headed Yorkshire man—the huge British phillistine, the irresponsible bull, the junker, the ex-Grisman Front-de-Boeuf, who had always rammed him of the brutal and contemptuous sword-clanking, spur-jingling aristocrats of his own country—ruffians that treated Jews like dogs. Callous as he was to the woes of others, the self-indulgent and highly-strung musician was extra sensitive about himself—a very bundle of nerves—and especially sensitive to pain and rough usage, and by no means physically brave.

The stern, choleric, invincible blue eye of the hated Northern gentile had cowed him at once. And that violent tweaking of his nose, that heavy open-handed blow on his face, had so shaken and demoralized him that he had never recovered from it.

He was thinking about it all ways—night and day—and constantly dreaming at night that he was being tweaked and slapped over again by a colossal nightmare Taffy, and waking up in agonies of terror, rage, and shame. All healthy sleep had forsaken him. Moreover, he was much older than he looked—nearly fifty—and far from sound. His life had been a long, hard struggle.

He had for his wife, slave, and pupil a fierce, jealous kind of affection that was a source of endless torment to him; for indelibly graven in her heart, which he wished to occupy alone, was the never-fading image of the little English painter, and of this she made no secret.

Gecko no longer cared for the master. All Gecko's doglike devotion was concentrated on the slave and pupil, whom he worshiped with a fierce but pure and unselfish passion. The only living soul that Svengali could trust was the old Jewess who lived with them—his relative—but even she had come to love the pupil as much as the master.

OLD SWEETHEART SEES HIS TRIUMPH

ROME, Oct. 19.—The commune of Predappio, where Premier Mussolini was born, recently acquired the house of his birth and gave it to him. He was present at the ceremony, and the people acclaimed him deliriously.

In the crowd was a woman still unmarried who, years ago, said to Mussolini as he wooed her with the impetuosity of youth: "We are both as poor as can be, and if we married we should only bring into the world beings equally poor to suffer and want. It is better that we agree to part." "By all means," replied Mussolini, and went his way to become prime minister.

HOSTS OF KIDDIES ATTEND BIG CIRCUS

Press Auditorium Crowded With Happy Youngsters

Humpty Dumpty circus closes tonight.

Humpty's menagerie from the Land of Oz makes quite a hit with the kiddies. In fact they crowded upon the manager in such numbers that they carried away the railings, special ropes and guards had to be thrown in to protect the Gook, Sarana, the bird that lays the square egg; Rollo, the Cubist elephant and the assemblage of child animals taking part as monkeys, lions, bears and cats.

A long program was given on the free act platform, the opening numbers being very cleverly given by children from the Woods School of Ever Kiddles. Among the numbers was a clown dance by Master Joseph Taylor, La Russe by Elizabeth Hayland, Les Papillons by the Steelman sisters, and the Jockey by Corine Fittinger. The above numbers were very well staged and a great credit to the Kiddies of the Woods school.

Petite Miss Ruth Heller scored a big hit in her presentation of "A Broodway Vamp," and interpreted "Mr. Gulliver" and "Mr. Shean" in her own novel manner. Jo-Jo and Krumble the Clown quite won the hearts of the kids with their funny antics and will be on hand again tonight to create their usual disturbances. The two feature numbers of the clowns being the "Sign Painter's Grief" and a touching little episode in the "Clown Barber Shop," in which the town sheriff gets reversed while in the barber chair and has his face shaved and his face blackened.

The Humpty Dumpty Circus will close tonight and many new numbers will be presented. Among the attractions on the Midway are the Amazonian Giant, King Tut's Tomb, containing an Egyptian Mummy; Spark Plug and Barney Google in person, and Krazy Kat and Ignatz Mouse.

The circus is held over the Daily Press and the doors will open promptly at 7 o'clock tonight.

AT THE THEATRES

ALICE CALHOUN IN 'MIDNIGHT ALARM' AT THE GATEWAY

No finer bit of work has ever been done by any actress than that displayed by Alice Calhoun in one of the swiftest-moving photoplays produced, "The Midnight Alarm," which began a run at the Gateway Theater on Thursday. Whimsicaly charming as Sparkle, lost daughter of wealth, Miss Calhoun gives a characterization that wins its way into the sympathetic hearts of spectators.

"The Midnight Alarm" is a story of a plotting business man, Silas Carrington, who slays his partner, Thornton, to obtain his wealth. Mrs. Thornton is driven to death before an onrushing train in trying to escape from Carrington in an automobile. Susan, her daughter, is tossed to safety and is picked up later by Mrs. Berg, who raises her as her own.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilwell, her grandparents, and Carrington keep up an intermittent search for the child, who is now known as Sparkle. Carrington learns she is alive and seeks to destroy evidence of her identity so that she can't claim the estate left to her, which on her death is to go to Carrington.

Chaser, a lovable crook, played by Cullen Landis, and Harry Westmore, a fire captain, impersonated by Percy Marmont, save the heroine after many daring adventures. The fire scenes are the best ever shown in any photoplay.

BARTHELMESS IN FIGHTING BLADE AT THE T. D. & L.

"Woman's chief ambition is to please man," says Allyn King, one of the two celebrated Ziegfeld Follies beauties who is appearing in the support of Richard Barthelmess in the John S. Robertson production, "The Fighting Blade," a

First National picture coming to the T. D. & L. Theater today. There is no such thing as the new woman. There is such a thing as the eternal feminine. The girl of today may have more freedom of action than had the girls of yesterday, but her thoughts and her whole life are shaped as were those of her mother and before her grandmother. The only difference is that granny, as girls, may have been more frank in their admissions. Perhaps that is why we were all startled when a recent graduating class at Vassar admitted that their goal in life was matrimony.

REALISTIC FILM OF PRISON LIFE AT THE GLENDALE

A picture of prison life given the most realistic and truest handling ever accorded the subject is promised by B. P. Schulberg, producer of Preferred Pictures, in "The Girl Who Came Back," now playing at the Glendale Theater. Schulberg assigned its production to Director Tom Forman who, it will be remembered, made Thomas Meighan's famous vehicle, "The City of Silent Men," a grim study of life "up the river." Prior to directing Meighan, Forman visited Sing Sing where he spent two weeks in prison garb among the convicts studying their psychology and mental reactions.

Before production started on "The Girl Who Came Back," Forman and his cameraman, Harry Perry, worked for days on a way for obtaining a peculiar prison effect. After many hours of doing and undoing, of tireless experimenting the solution came, with the result that Miriam Cooper as "The Girl Who Came Back" is able to convey to the audience in all the actuality of details the mental obsessions of the prison inmates. Forman and Perry are carefully guarding their secret that has baffled many other studio experimenters.

AFTERWARD

The little dolls and toys and things
Are where she left them lie;
The moving animals with springs,
The great giraffe, so high,
And birds with feet and bills and wings,
Up in the nursery.

The soldiers made of tin and wood
That fiercely fought of yore,
We left them where they fell and could
Not bear to touch them more,
We looked a moment as we stood,
Then softly shut the door.

And there were blocks made in a house,
Just as she left it there,
And nearby was a sugar mouse
That sniffed the spicy air,
A tiny old man and his spouse
Of wax were near somewhere.

And so we left them as they lay,
And as she left them o'er
The night before that bitter day,
Nor ever saw them more;
We looked once, but we did not stay,
Just softly closed the door.

AN IDEAL

When a man deliberately declines many millions of dollars and the time and freedom to enjoy himself in ways that he might wish, there must be a powerful thought behind his action.

This is the power of an ideal—the calm resolve of a man to carry on a service to his fellow men.

This was the decision of Frederick B. Patterson, president of The National Cash Register Company, and the ideal about which we shall tell you as the days go by.
